Nelson Mandela, in full Nelson Rolihlahla Mandela, byname Madiba, (born July 18, 1918, Mvezo, South Africa—died December 5, 2013, Johannesburg), Black nationalist and the first Black president of South Africa (1994–99). His negotiations in the early 1990s with South African Pres. F.W. de Klerk helped end the country's apartheid system of racial segregation and ushered in a peaceful transition to majority rule. Mandela and de Klerk were jointly awarded the Nobel Prize for Peace in 1993 for their efforts.

Nelson Mandela was the son of Chief Henry Mandela of the Madiba clan of the Xhosa-speaking Tembu people. After his father's death, young Nelson was raised by Jongintaba, the regent of the Tembu. Nelson renounced his claim to the chieftainship to become a lawyer. He attended South African Native College (later the University of Fort Hare) and studied law at the University of the Witwatersrand;

In 1944 he joined the African National Congress (ANC), a Black-liberation group, and became a leader of its Youth League. In 1952 in Johannesburg, with fellow ANC leader Oliver Tambo, Mandela established South Africa's first Black law practice, specializing in cases resulting from the post-1948 apartheid legislation.

He traveled throughout the country as part of the campaign, trying to build support for nonviolent means of protest against the discriminatory laws. In 1955 he was involved in drafting the Freedom Charter, a document calling for nonracial social democracy in South Africa.

Mandela's antiapartheid activism made him a frequent target of the authorities. Starting in 1952, he was intermittently banned (severely restricted in travel, association, and speech).

From 1964 to 1982 Mandela was incarcerated at Robben Island Prison, off Cape Town. Throughout his incarceration, Mandela retained wide support among South Africa's Black population, and his imprisonment became a cause célèbre among the international community that condemned apartheid. As South Africa's political situation deteriorated after 1983, and particularly after 1988, he was engaged by ministers of Pres. P.W. Botha's government in exploratory negotiations; he met with Botha's successor, de Klerk, in December 1989. On February 11, 1990, the South African government under President de Klerk released Mandela from prison. Shortly after his release, Mandela was chosen deputy president of the ANC; he became president of the party in July 1991.

In April 1994 the Mandela-led ANC won South Africa's first elections by universal suffrage, and on May 10 Mandela was sworn in as president of the country's first multiethnic government.

Mandela did not seek a second term as South African president. After leaving office Mandela retired from active politics but maintained a strong international presence as an advocate of peace, reconciliation, and social justice, often through the work of the Nelson Mandela Foundation, established in 1999.

Bliss Series: Faster and Better

“Take up one idea. Make that one idea your life – think of it, dream of it, live on that idea.

Let the brain, muscles, nerves, every part of your body, be full of that idea, and just leave every other idea alone.

This is the way to success”.

– Swami Vivekananda

Fast does not mean haste, fast means efficiency. The secret to success lies in careful preparation followed by speedy and decisive execution. Success is a very simple thing; and the determining characteristics are confidence, speed, and audacity – none of which can ever be perfect, but they can be good.

The Eight Habits of highly productive people:

- 1. Ruthlessly cut away the unimportant: Focus on the important.
- 2. Allocate breaks strategically: Rest when you are tired.
- 3. Remove productivity barriers: Detach from things that limit your productivity.
- 4. Tap into your inspiration: Channel your inner muse.
- 5. Create barriers to entry: Don't make yourself too accessible.

6. Optimize time pockets: Make the best of every minute.
7. Set timelines: For the actions to be executed.
8. Automate everything possible: Outsource, delegate, and automate

How to decide faster: A mindset for making faster decisions.

1. Limit your options.
2. Draw a line between good and bad choices.
3. Listen to your gut feeling.
4. Think of your time as money.
5. Know that decisiveness grows with each decision.
6. Remember that indecision kills.

SPC Message: "Every next level of your life will demand a different you".

1. Book of the month- Unfinished: A Memoir by Priyanka Chopra Jonas

Unfinished takes readers from Priyanka's childhood in India, where she was raised by her grandparents and her parents—two army doctors committed not only to their children but to their careers and to philanthropy. The result is a book that is warm, funny, sassy, inspiring, bold, and rebellious. Priyanka Chopra Jonas's story will inspire a generation around the world to gather their courage, embrace their ambition, and commit to the hard work of following their dreams.

2. Word of the month: Busk perform music or other entertainment in the street or another public place for monetary donations:

3. Concept of the month: Counterfactual Thinking

Have you noticed that a bronze medalist is generally more happy than a silver medalist at the end of the games. It's not an incidental finding but a proven fact in many research studies after studying reactions of silver medalists vs bronze medalists! Ideally, a silver medalist should be more happy than the bronze. But, human mind doesn't work like mathematics. This happens because of the phenomenon of counterfactual thinking. A concept in psychology in which there is a human tendency to create possible alternatives to life events that have already happened, that would be contrary to what happened. A silver medalist thinks, "Oh I couldn't win the gold medal." A bronze medalist thinks, "At least I got a medal. A silver medal is won after losing, but a bronze medal is won after winning.

This happens in our life also, we don't appreciate what we have but feel sad with what we don't have. Let's be grateful for our blessings, they far outweigh our problems if we start counting. Life is after all full of choices, do always count your blessings to stay positive & motivated.

4. Quite Interesting-Unknown facts about LUDO

Ludo is a strategy board game for 2 to 4 players, in which the players race their four tokens from start to finish according to the rolls of a single die. Like other cross and circle games, Ludo is derived from the Indian game Pachisi. The earliest evidence of this game's evolution in India is the depiction of boards on the caves of Ellora.

The original version is also described in Indian epic MAHABHARATA in which Shakuni uses the cursed dice to beat the Pandavas and at last after losing everything, Yudhishtira puts his wife Draupadi on stake and loses her too.

It was also known as Chaupar in ancient times. The contemporary version was played by the Mughal emperors of India; a notable example is Akbar. The game and its variations are popular in many countries and under various names.

Pachisi was modified to use a cubic die with dice cup and patented as "Ludo" in England in 1896. The Royal Navy took Ludo and converted it into the board game Uckers.

8. Inspirational short story-The Boulder and the Gold

There once was a king who decided to do a little experiment. He had a giant boulder put right in the middle of the street. He then hid near the boulder to see who, if anyone, would try to move it out of the way.

First, some wealthy merchants walked by. They walked around the boulder, complaining that the king hasn't been maintaining the roads very well.

Next, a peasant walked by, heading home with his arms full of food for his family. When he noticed the boulder, he put his groceries down and attempted to move it out of everyone's way. It took him a while to move it, but he eventually succeeded.

After the peasant gathered up his groceries to carry on home, he noticed a bag lying in the middle of the road, just where the boulder once was. He opened the bag to find that it was stuffed full of gold coins, along with a letter from the king saying that the bag's gold was a reward for the peasant to keep because he had taken the time and energy to move the boulder out of the road for the convenience of others who would be travelling the road in the future..

The Moral:

The peasant in this story was taught by the king that every obstacle you face offers an opportunity to improve. If you're able to push through moments that are challenging, you may end up being much better off than you were before you started trying.

This story also offers a lesson of personal responsibility. If you see a job ahead of you, don't leave it for the next person to do. Rather, step up and get the job done to help the people who come after you.
